Bookmark this for your next cheesy burrata fix!

If you're a real cheese lover, and have yet to try burrata, you're missing out. You absolutely need to try it – there's no question about it. This exquisitely rich, soft and creamy cheese resembles a large ball of mozzarella, but make no mistake, it's arguably better. Burrata (which translates to 'butter' in Italian) is traditionally made with a solid outer shell of mozzarella that is filled with a rich-tasting centre of stracciatella and cream, explaining its unique creamy texture and flavour. A satisfying slice into the cheese reveals a beautifully lush interior of soft curd and fresh cream. Tempted yet?

Singapore is definitely not short of great spots that serve up some wicked burrata dishes, like Cugini at Club Street or Zafferano at Collyer Quay. Head up to our gallery above to check out our top 6 spots for a scrumptious burrata fix!

Zafferano

Fancy a spot of burrata while in the CBD? If so, Zafferano is definitely the place to be. Located in the heart of Singapore's financial centre, this restaurant is a popular haunt among those working in the area. A morsel of their burrata cheese (SGD26) will have you enlightened on why it's been raved about so much. Freshly imported from Andria, the cheese is paired with San Marzano tomatoes, basil and Sicilian extra virgin olive oil.
